Council follows the guidelines prepared by the Geographical Names Board of NSW

Introduction

- The Geographical Names Act, 1966, empowers the Geographical Names Board, constituted under the Act, to assign names to places, to investigate and determine the form, spelling, meaning, pronunciation, origin and history of any geographical name; and the application of such name with regard to position, extent or otherwise.
- "Place" means any geographical or topographical feature or any district, division, locality, region, city, town, village, settlement, railway station or school or any other place within the territories and waters of the State of New South Wales but does not include any road, any local government area, urban area, county district or electoral district.
- Individuals, private organisations and government authorities should submit any proposal to assign a geographical name on this form, GNB.1.
- Names of Aboriginal origin or with an historical background are preferred.

Guidelines For The Determination Of Place Names

Endorsed by the Geographical Names Board of NSW on 17 October 1996.

- A name suggested for any place that owes its origin to the peculiarity of the topographic feature designated, such as shape, vegetation, animal life, etc., may be accepted but, in doing so, care should be exercised in avoiding duplication of names already used for other features.
The Geographical Names Board prefers to avoid the repetition of commonly used names.
Sugar Loaf, Sandy, Back, Bald, Deep, Long, Kangaroo, Reedy, Rocky, Spring and Stony are examples of such names.
- Easily pronounced names should, as far as possible, be used.
- Names of Aboriginal origin or with a historical background are preferred.
- Names acknowledging the multicultural nature of our society are encouraged.
- The changing of long established place names is generally not preferred, except where necessary to avoid ambiguity or duplication.
- If considered appropriate, place names may perpetuate the names of eminent persons, particularly those of early explorers, settlers and naturalists.
- Names of persons should normally only be given posthumously but the Board, at its discretion, may approve a feature name which honours a living person. Such a person's contribution to the local community should have been of outstanding benefit to the community. Ownership of the land is not sufficient reason for the application of the owner's name to a geographical feature. The Board will not approve the naming of a feature after a person still holding public office.
- The Board may approve a first or given name as part of a geographical name only where it is necessary to appropriately honour the person referred to or where it is necessary to avoid ambiguity.
- Long and clumsily constructed names and named composed of two or more words should be avoided.
- The multiplication of names for different parts of the same topographical feature such as a stream or mountain range will be avoided whenever possible and the one name applied to a stream or mountain range throughout its entire length.
- The naming of forks, arms and branches of a river as North Branch and South Branch is not favoured. Generally, it is preferable to assign independent names to river branches.
- The use of cardinal points of the compass as a prefix or suffix to an existing name is not favoured. However well established names which carry such a prefix or suffix may be approved.

- Where names have been changed or corrupted by long established local usage, it is not usually advisable to attempt to restore the original form; that spelling which is sanctioned by general usage should be adopted.
- When a choice is offered between two or more names for the same place, locality or feature, all sanctioned by local usage, the Board may adopt one of such names as is considered appropriate in accordance with the rules outlined above.
- The possessive form should be avoided whenever possible without destroying the sound of the name or changing its descriptive application, eg, Howes Valley should be written without the apostrophe.
- The use of hyphens in connecting parts of names should, as far as possible be avoided.
- Names considered offensive or likely to give offence will not be approved.

Determination Of Locality/Suburb Names And Boundaries

Recommended Procedures for Local Councils

Local councils have an important role in reflecting the views of the local community and assisting the Geographical Names Board in the consultative process which is set out below. The Board works closely with local councils when defining boundaries because local residents are the most significant users of the names.

- Consult with Progress Associations, Australia Post, residents and other relevant groups.
  - Prepare maps showing draft suburb or locality boundaries.
  - Advertise and exhibit draft boundaries through appropriate media and call for submissions.
  - Review submissions.
  - If necessary, redraft boundaries and go back to 3.
  - When draft boundaries are acceptable to residents, submit to council for approval to submit to Geographical Names Board (GNB).
  - Submit map showing draft boundaries and locality/suburb names to GNB. GNB may ask for advice about locality/suburb names in council's area that have not had their area identified.
  - GNB advises council of approval of the proposal and supplies maps, copy of advertisement notifying the proposal and media release for exhibition and advertisement of the proposal.
  - GNB advertises proposal to determine boundaries and assign names in the local press and in the Government Gazette. People have one month to submit any objections to the Board.
  - If, after one month, there are no objections, GNB notifies boundaries in the Government Gazette and advises council that the process is complete.
  - Councils implements boundaries and names on signposting, rates database etc. It is also a good idea for council to prepare an item for the local media confirming the determination of the boundaries.
- IF OBJECTIONS ARE RECEIVED, the Board will seek council's advice regarding those objections.
- Council advises the Board regarding the objections that were received. This will often require a submission to the GNB requesting an amendment to the previous proposal.

The GNB considers any objections it has received and if an amendment has been recommended by council, treats that as a new proposal. The process then recommences from stage 7.

- If objections are received by the Board and no amendment is recommended by council then the GNB will consider the objections and make a recommendation based on the objections and the requirements of the Geographical Names Act to the Minister for Regional Development and Rural Affairs.

Introduction Of New Suburb Names

- In New South Wales the naming of places, including suburbs, is a function of the Geographical Names Board and the processes for doing so are set out in the Geographical Names Act 1966.

Benefits

- Where a development is likely to create a community which is to have its own identity and name, it is helpful to all concerned if the new suburb name can be formalised early in the process. This avoids the problems frequently seen in the past where a new area is referred to by many names such as adjoining suburbs; the main locality name used prior to subdivision; an estate name which has not formal status or a variation of an existing name.
- Formalisation of a suburb name means that it will be shown in street and postcode directories thus making it much easier for new residents and persons delivering materials for building or construction in the area. Most importantly, confusion in communication can be avoided because the area will have defined boundaries as well as an official name which encourages everyone to use the same name when referring to the area.
- Early formalisation of a suburb name also avoids new residents having to advise a change of address as would be the case if the suburb's name was Assigned after they moved into the area.

Process

- Proposals for new suburbs should be submitted to the Geographical Names Board with a map detailing the area of the new suburb. Proposals not submitted by the local council should include evidence that the local council concurs with the proposed name and boundaries before the Board will consider the application.
- The Geographical Names Board will consider the proposal, and if it is acceptable, will approve the proposal in principle.
- The Board then advertises the proposal in local newspapers and in the Government Gazette. Maps prepared by the Board will also be exhibited in places nominated by the council. This process enables local residents to comment on the proposal and helps the Board to assess the local acceptance of the proposal.
- After one month, if no objections are received by the Board, the name is formalised by notification in the Government Gazette. Contentious proposals are referred for Council opinion before being reconsidered by the Board.
- Once the name is Assigned it can be shown on maps and used as a legitimate address. It will also be given a postcode by Australia Post.

This has not been authoritatively established, a search of book's etc, of Aboriginal words has not revealed this name.</li> <li>The use of the name appears to have begun in 1964 when Bannister and Hunter Surveyors, Gosford applied for a subdivision of the Late Mr A I Chapman's land to be called the Watanobbi Estate. There was no indication of the meaning of the word. The land comprising the Watanobbi Estate was approximately 270 acres of vacant bush land, Owned by Mr Alfred Ingram Chapman, of Gosford who died in 1963 (no children) Mr Ashwell, of Ashwell &amp; Carroll Pty Ltd Realtors of Gosford managed and was an executor of Mr Chapman's Estate.</li> <li>The first stage of Watanobbi Estate was released by Council on March 16 1966 and registered May 10 1966.</li> <li>Mr G (John) Hunter the surveyor could not recall why the name was used. ## APPENDIX A

Glossary Of Designation Values In The Register

ABORIGINAL RESERVE	Crown land set aside for Aborigines, where they may continue their traditional lifestyle away from the influence of white Australians, and access to which is controlled by Federal or State authorities or by Aboriginal land Councils.
AERODROME	All licensed aerodromes and government aerodromes maintained by the Federal Airports Corporation, other than those designated 'airports'.
AIRFIELD	A landing or taking-off area for aircraft.
AIRPORT	An aerodrome that handles regular schedules of passengers and freight.
AMPHITHEATRE	Basin shaped hollow, particularly one having steep sides. Considerable variation in size.
ANABRANCH	A distributary of an anastomosing river which links up with other distributaries and sometimes with the parent stream
ARM	A comparatively long, narrow and natural waterway extending from a larger body of water.
ARTESIAN BORE	A hole bored perpendicularly into strata, producing a constant supply of water at the surface without pumping.
BACKWATER	A body of stagnant water connected to a river.
BASIN	1. The tract of country drained by a river and its tributaries, or which drains into a particular lake or area. 2. A circumscribed formation in which the strata dip inward from all sides to the centre; the stratified deposit, especially of coal, lying in such a depression. 3. An area of water limited in extent and nearly enclosed by structures alongside which vessels can lie. A non-tidal basin is one closed by caisson of gates to shut off from open water, so that a constant level of water can be maintained in it. Also called a ""wet dock"". A tidal basin is one without gates in which the level of the water rises and falls with the tide. Sometimes called an ""Open Basin"".
BAY	A well marked indentation made by the sea or a lake into a coastline, whose penetration is in such proportion to the width of its mouth as to contain land locked waters and constitutes more than a mere curvature of the coast.
BEACH	The sloping shore along a body of water that is periodically washed by waves or tides and is usually covered with sand or gravel.
BIGHT	A crescent-shaped indentation in the coastline usually of large extent and not more than a 90 degree sector of a circle. See 'Bay' and 'Gulf'.

BILLABONG	An efflux from a stream, usually an old bend in the stream, which has been cut off by erosion and deposition. When the fall of a stream is only a few centimetres per kilometre channel is usually incapable of clearing flood waters, which overflow into this efflux. As the water recede the efflux or billabong becomes a pool or a series of pools, which in dry periods may completely dry up.
BLUFF	A spur or ridge terminating in a steep, rocky face.
BORE	A deep vertical hole of a small diameter drilled to obtain water. Designation includes 'Artesian Bore'.
BOUNDARY	That which serves to indicate the limits of a particular area. Various types of boundaries which may be encountered, are: 1. UNCLASSIFIED BOUNDARIES; those drawn by the compiler prior to classification to delineate a change in surface characteristics. 2. INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARIES; those defining the territorial sovereignty of a country. 3. STATE OR TERRITORY BOUNDARIES; those defining the major administrative or political divisions within a country. 4. ADMINISTRATIVE AREA BOUNDARIES; those defining areas of common local or regional administration. 5. PROHIBITED AREA BOUNDARIES; those defining the limits of an area into which entry is prohibited, without prior permission from a controlling authority, for security or safety reasons.
BREAKWATER	A natural or artificial structure along a coast capable of checking the force of the waves, thereby reducing beach erosion. The designation includes 'groyne', 'training wall' and 'levee'. The latter two are to restrict rivers to a defined course.
BROOK	A small stream or rivulet.
BUTTE	A small residual of a mesa. The level top being the upper surface of the hard stratum but little lowered by erosion. The slopes on all sides are escarpments and its maximum horizontal dimension in any one direction is about 400 metres.
BUTTRESS	A very steep spur projecting from a hill, mountain, plateau, range etc., having the appearance of supporting it.
CAMP	A place where tents, cabins, etc. are erected for the use of military troops, etc.
CANAL	A large artificial watercourse used for irrigation or navigation.
CANYON	A Gorge, relatively narrow but of considerable size, bounded by steep slopes. It has often been formed by a river cutting through the soft rocks of an arid region; the scantiness of the rainfall prevents denudation of the canyon walls, and so maintains their steepness. The walls of a large canyon, however, rarely approach the vertical, and their irregularity of slope is due to inequalities in the hardness of the rock.
CAPE	A piece of land jutting into the sea; a projecting headland or promontory.
CATCHMENT AREA	The region which drains all the rain water that falls on it, apart from that removed by evaporation, into a river or stream, which then carries the water into the sea or a lake; it may thus coincide with the 'River Basin'. Its boundary is defined by the ridge beyond which water flows in the opposite direction - away from the basin.
CAUSEWAY	A raised roadway of solid structure built across low or wet ground or across a stretch of water.
CAVE	A hollowed-out chamber in the earth, especially a natural cavity with an opening to the surface.

CEMETERY	A place or area for burying the dead.
CHANNEL	1. An artificial watercourse used for drainage or irrigation purposes. 2. A comparatively deep and narrow waterway affording a passage for vessels. The waterway may be natural or dredged and can occur in a river, harbour or sea.
CHASM	A particularly narrow portion of a gorge or ravine where the width is notably exceeded by the depth and the sides are vertical or nearly so.
CITY	A centre of population, commerce, and culture with all essential services; a town of significant size and importance, generally accorded the legal right to call itself a city under, either, the Local Government Act, the Crown Lands Act or other instruments put in place by Government.
CLEARING	An area of ground within a forest, where less than 15% of the ground is covered by trees or scrub. Clearings within areas of dense vegetation may be manmade or naturally occurring.
CLIFF	A perpendicular or steep face of rock considerable in height, either inland or along the coast.
COLLEGE	An establishment for technical or vocational education usually post secondary
COMMON	A tract of land which belongs to the local community as a whole, and is open to common use.
COUNTY	Territorial division of the State for administrative purposes.
COVE	A small indention in a coast, usually sheltered.
COWAL	A small lake or dam.
CRATER	A bowl shaped cavity, in particular, at the summit or on the side of a volcano. And from which smoke and steam may emanate if the volcano is active. Craters of extinct volcanoes may contain crater lakes. The word crater is applied to other depressions especially those caused by the fall of large meteorites onto the earth's surface. Volcanic craters are sometimes called calders.
CREEK	A natural watercourse that is usually a tributary of a river or another creek. It may be perennial or non-perennial and in some areas its course may become indefinite or even peter out.
CROSSING	A place where a street, railway, stream, etc., may be crossed.
CUTTING	An open excavation through high ground, generally for a transportation system.
DAM	1. A barrier built across a stream to impound its water for any purpose. 2. An earthen structure built to contain water for stock purposes.
DEPRESSION	A depressed or sunken place.
DESERT	An almost barren tract of land in which precipitation is so scanty or spasmodic that it will not adequately support vegetation.

DIP	A place for controlling ticks on cattle.
DISTRICT	1. Territory marked off for special administrative purposes. 2. A tract of country, up to about 1600 sq. kms in area, distinguished by certain common characteristics, natural or cultural.
DOCK	An artificial structure in which ships are built or repaired.
DRAIN	A channel, man made or natural, by which liquid is drained or gradually carried away.
DUNES	Mounds or ridges of sand formed, either in a desert or along the sea coast, through transportation by the wind.
ESCARPMENT	A more or less continuous line of cliffs or steep slopes terminating any generally level upland surface, and is due to erosion or faulting.
ESTUARY	The tidal mouth of a river, where the tide meets the current of fresh water; more commonly, an arm of the sea at the lower end of a river.
FALLS	A sudden, more or less perpendicular, descent of water over a natural step in the bed of a river or stream.
FAULT	A fracture in the earth's crust along which movement has taken place, and where the rock strata on the two sides therefore do not match.
FLAT	A relatively level piece of ground within an area of greater relief; a tract of country without hills and smaller than a plain. In river valleys they may be Valley or River Flats, along the foreshores and subject to tidal action they are Tidal Flats and according to the nature of the surface they may be Mud, Stony or Sandy Flats.
FLORA RESERVE	Crown land set aside for the protection of flora, and access to which is controlled by Federal or State authorities.
FORD	The shallow part of a stream or other body of water, where it may be crossed by vehicle or by wading. The crossing may be natural or improved, but not by bridging.
FOREST	An area of land proclaimed to be a forest under a Forest Act.
GAOL	A place for the confinement of persons convicted and sentenced to imprisonment or of persons awaiting trial.
GAP	A low point or opening between hills or mountains or in a ridge or mountain range.
GLEN	A narrow, wooded valley with a stream flowing at its bottom. Its sides being generally steep.
GOLF COURSE	An area of ground laid out for the playing of golf
GORGE	A valley deep in proportion to its width, usually with precipitous or very steep sides. Generally a feature of some magnitude, relative to the surrounding base.
GRADIENT	A noteworthy gradient inclination or slope of the surface of the ground on the side or end of an elevated relief feature.

GRAVEYARD	A place for graves; a burial ground, esp. a small one or one in a churchyard.
GULF	Large valleys in mountain ranges OR An area of sea partly enclosed by land; usually of larger extent, and greater relative penetration than a bay, that is, Gulf of Carpentaria.
GULLY	A natural watercourse formed in the earth's surface, especially a hillside, by the action of water. It only carries water after rain and its sides are generally steep. Usually one of the smallest branches of a drainage system, and often associated with erosive action.
HARBOUR	A natural or artificially improved stretch of water where vessels can anchor or secure to buoys or alongside wharves etc and obtain protection from sea and swell. The protection may be afforded by natural features or by artificial works. The place may be provided with terminal and transfer facilities for loading and discharging cargo or passengers.
HEAD	A comparatively high promontory of land projecting into the sea with a steep face. An un-named head is usually described as a `Headland' when a specific name is assigned, it becomes a `Head'.
HEADLAND	A narrow area of land jutting out into a sea, lake, etc.
HILL	A small portion of the earth's surface elevated above its surroundings, of lower altitude than a mountain. Generally its altitude is less than 300 metres above the surrounding country but this can change in areas of low relief.
HILLOCK	A small hill or mound.
HISTORIC AREA	An area or precinct containing no or minimum present activity, but which at one time was an area of recognised name and purpose.
HISTORIC SITE	A specific place or site which has at one time been the site of an event or purpose.
HISTORICAL LOCALITY	An area or precinct containing no or minimum present activity, but which at one time was an area of recognised name and purpose.
HISTORICAL RECONSTRUCTION	An area or precinct which at one time was an area of recognised name and purpose and has now been redeveloped to recognise its past.
HOLE	An area hollowed out in or an opening in the ground.
HOMESTEAD	House with outbuildings, especially a farm or station.
